Public discussion: The potential of bioenergy crops to remove carbon dioxide from the atmosphere

30. September 2015, Oxford / UK

"To avoid dangerous climate change will require not only very steep cuts in emissions, but also the removal of carbon dioxide from the atmosphere. Most of the models that avoid dangerous climate change do so by assuming that it will be possible to deploy a technique called biomass energy with carbon capture and storage (or BECCS for short) at a very large scale. But is this realistic? Please join us for a public discussion to explore this issue."
