

13.03.2012

# Media

0 Comments

The Atlantic: How Engineering the Human Body Could Combat Climate Change

Human engineering could be less risky than climate engineering, says S. Matthew Liao.

Links

Read more » The Atlantic: How Engineering the Human Body Could Combat Climate Change

16.02.2012

# Projects

0 Comments

Ministry of the Environment of Japan: Funding of Project “Multidisciplinary Research on Constructing Risk Management Plan for Global Climate Change” (Japanese Language)

Japanese research project with a duration of 5 years beginning this April. The annual budget is about US $3,850,000 (300,000,000 in Japanese yen), totaling more than US 19 million dollars at present exchange rate.

Link (Japanese Language)

General Link (Ministry of the Environment of Japan, English Language)

See here for a rough English-language translation

Read more » Ministry of the Environment of Japan: Funding of Project “Multidisciplinary Research on Constructing Risk Management Plan for Global Climate Change” \(Japanese Language\)

03.02.2012

# Calls & events

0 Comments

Game: Science Museum launches online games about the future of technology

The Science Museum hosts a game on future technologies including a technology scenario of cloud whitening.

Link for Guardian article

Direct Link to the game

Read more » Game: Science Museum launches online games about the future of technology

29.11.2011

# Media

0 Comments

Zeit Online: Geoengineering could be a Plan B in Climate Policy

The article in a German news paper considers CE as a viable plan B.

Link

Read more » Zeit Online: Geoengineering could be a Plan B in Climate Policy

Page 2 of 2

- Previous
- 1
- 2